A Memoir by Alexandra Fuller

In this powerful and moving memoir, Alexandra Fuller tells the story of her journey through grief and loss, and the transformative power of love and connection.

Fuller's story begins in Africa, where she grew up on a farm in Zambia. Her childhood was idyllic, filled with adventure and love. But when she was 16, her father was killed in a plane crash. Fuller's world was shattered, and she struggled to come to terms with her loss.

In the years that followed, Fuller traveled the world, seeking to escape her grief. She worked as a journalist in war zones, and she lived in remote villages in Africa and Asia. But no matter where she went, she couldn't escape the pain of her father's death.

Finally, Fuller realized that the only way to heal was to face her grief head-on. She began to write about her father, and about the love and loss that had shaped her life. The result is this extraordinary memoir, a testament to the power of love, connection, and the human spirit.

Praise for Always Going Somewhere Always Coming Home

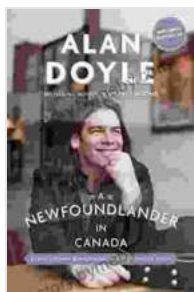

"A powerful and moving memoir about a young woman's journey through grief and loss, and the transformative power of love and connection." — The New York Times

"A beautifully written and deeply moving memoir. Fuller's story is one of resilience, hope, and the enduring power of love." — People magazine

"A must-read for anyone who has ever experienced loss. Fuller's story is a powerful reminder that even in the darkest of times, there is always hope."
— Booklist
