Their Story

Estela and Tina Kretel Arzola are two sisters who grew up in a small town in Mexico. They were raised by a single mother who worked hard to provide for them. Estela and Tina learned from their mother the importance of hard work and determination.

When Estela and Tina were young, they saw firsthand the challenges that women faced in their community. They saw women who were denied opportunities, who were discriminated against, and who were victims of violence. Estela and Tina knew that they wanted to make a difference in the lives of women.

After graduating from high school, Estela and Tina moved to the United States. They both earned college degrees and went on to have successful careers. However, they never forgot their dream of helping women.

In 2010, Estela and Tina founded the Kretel Arzola Foundation. The foundation's mission is to empower women and girls around the world. The foundation provides scholarships, mentoring, and training programs to women who are facing challenges.

Estela and Tina have also written a book about their work. The book, Estela and Tina Kretel Arzola: Two Sisters on a Mission to Empower Women, is a must-read for anyone who wants to make a difference in the world.
